•SYNOPSIS•

Heta is a couples' therapist who believes in love and relationships based on communication and knowing your partner. Koistinen, a divorce therapist, believes in life after divorce and that we can never completely know the people we love - it's an illusion that brings about divorce and the pain it causes. Ten years ago, Heta and Koistinen were a couple, until she left him to marry Janne, with whom she had fallen deeply in love. Koistinen fell apart.

Now Janne has disappeared while taking out the trash. The police tell Heta there's nothing they can do - a person has every right to disappear if there is no sign of a crime. Troubled, she begins searching for Janne and finds only one clue: it seems he has undergone Koistinen's radical divorce therapy for men. Heta is incredulous - everything was so good between them.

In pursuit of the truth she joins four desperate divorced men in one of her former lover's therapy groups...

Together, they begin a strange journey towards their new lives.

Happy Hour of the Wolf is an unsettling drama exploring male and female perceptions of separation.
